

Steve Ardagh, "The Glove Guy" | Expert Source Overview

Steve Ardagh is CEO and Founder of Eagle Protect, the world's only B Corp® certified glove and Personal Protective Equipment (PPE) supplier to the food, medical, and industrial sectors in the U.S., Australia and New Zealand.

AREAS OF EXPERTISE

Steve has become an industry leader, having spent the last 20 years working intimately with glove, PPE and clothing factories throughout the world. He can speak to a number of topics, including:

1. Manufacturing and quality control standards of gloves and clothing affecting product performance
2. Supply chain traceability, government regulation and pricing
3. Ethical sourcing, including labor rights issues
4. Third-party glove testing & analysis, due to largely unregulated federal and FDA import requirements
5. Business leader in social responsibility and environmental accountability

BACKGROUND & HISTORY

Eagle Protect is an industry leader in New Zealand, where the company supplies approximately 80% of the primary food processing industry. In 2016 Steve and his family relocated to the U.S. and launched Eagle Protect PBC, with a purpose of safeguarding their customers, staff and consumers with premium products, outstanding service and industry solutions. Now a growing leader in glove supply of premium quality products to multiple U.S. industries, mitigating business risk and improving end user glove safety, Steve has been instrumental in developing Eagle's proprietary third-party Delta Zero™ quality verification program.

The Eagle Protect team partners with all industries, from meat processing and restaurants to medical and dentistry, developing specific formulas to best fit each user's needs. They are passionate about meeting their customers' needs through innovative product design and quality, and by reducing their product usage and environmental impacts. By focusing on quality, labor rights standards and sustainability, Steve has made being an ethical company a top priority. This is further strengthened by Eagle's B Corp™ certification since 2012, remaining the only company in their industry to hold this certification.
